THE WATER QUESTION

Communication From Citizens' Committee to the Town Council.

The following petition signed by all the members of the Citizens' Committee except two who are absent from home, has been presented to the Town Council:

To the Honorable Borough Council of Bedford:

We, the undersigned members of the Committee, appointed at a Town Meeting held in this borough on the 3rd day of August, 1909, respectfully present to your notice the following:

Whereas, the taxpayers of this borough, urged by the apprehension that they will again suffer from a scarcity of pure water, which scarcity is caused largely by the escape and loss of water of which they might have the benefit if proper remedies were applied, presented a respectful petition signed by 200 of them to your Honorable Body praying for relief. Their committees were appointed to confer and advise with Council, to the end that prompt and effective measures might be taken to afford the relief sought. The committees entered actively upon their duties, visited and examined the reservoirs, consulted with Council, and attended two meetings at which they were courteously treated. At the first meeting Council resolved to employ an engineer to investigate the subject of our water supply. At the second meeting his report was read, and after lengthy discussion, participated in by both Council and committees, the latter were left under the impression that it was decided to build a catch-basin to save the escaping water at the Todd reservoir. The people expressed great satisfaction at the result of the meetings, and the committees felt that the best method had been adopted to save the water for their use.

Whereas, Council held their regular meeting on the 7th inst., at which meeting, without an intimation to the committees that such action would be considered, another plan was adopted which the committee had opposed because of the uncertainty of the result, and the impossibility of estimating the cost.

Now, therefore, we the undersigned members of committees representing the people in Town Meeting assembled, having had our advice without a further hearing rejected, do protest against the undertaking of uncertain remedies for existing evils, which may cost a large sum without any advantageous result.

And pray that your Honorable Body make public through the newspapers or by printed copies, the full report of the engineer, obtained at public expense, so that the citizens may judge of its value, and ascertain what it contains any positive opinions, any definite plan of operations, any assurances of the success of the same, or any estimate of the probable cost thereof.

That a full statement and explanation of the proposed action of Council be furnished to the people before commencing operations, and that meanwhile your Honorable Body will hear testimony which the committees believe they can produce, to show that at least one spring exists within the embankment of Todd reservoir, which will prevent its being made water-tight, and will force an opening through which its own water and a part of that of the reservoir will escape. If the committees had been invited to meet the engineer and present their evidence and arguments, his report might have been different.

That a full account of the water department, from the date of the last published statement, if there has ever been one, to this time be published as required by law, showing all income from taxes, rents, etc., and to what purposes it has been applied, whether there has been left a surplus, and whether such surplus if any has been applied to the reduction of the water debt as required by law, to the end that the taxpayers may have intimate knowledge of the financial affairs of the borough, so that if the question of borrowing funds comes before them they may be able to vote intelligently, because if the water supply is to be properly provided it is certain that money will have to be obtained for the purpose. We believe your Honorable Body will all agree that there should be an increase of storage capacity, and a new pipe line laid from the Milburn reservoir, and this will necessitate the raising of a loan.

Our duty requires us to serve well the power appointing us, and we take this method of communicating with your Honorable Body, and at the same time informing the people of our action in their behalf. If you decide to proceed under your resolution as it now stands, we wish you success, though we have little faith in the efficacy of your plan. We have made our suggestions and given our advice. We can go no further at present. In you reposes the power to act, and upon you rests the responsibility. If your decision results in good to the community, we shall rejoice.

We shall continue on duty until discharged.

Signed—A. I. Lyon, J. L. McLaughlin, Abraham B. Egolf, J. Agnew Wright, J. H. Longenecker, F. H. Brighthill, E. A. Barnett, S. F. Statler.

LIGHT AND SHADOW

By Calvin W. Diehl

In the glad days of my boyhood
Once I wandered to a spot
Where a gardener was working
In a little garden lot.

All the plants were green and thrifty
Neath the keeper's earnest care;
I could almost see them growing
While I stood and watched them
there.

And so perfect was the grandeur
That was there on every side—
Nature's beauty shedding perfume
On the breezes fat and wide—

That I scarcely know the feeling
That came o'er me while I stood
Looking in among the flowers
Thinking all that was, was good.

In the middle of the garden
Stood a cottage, and I knew
That its inmate was the old man
By whose care the flowers grew.

And the sun at early morning
Threw its bright beams in the hall,
As it peeped thru ivy branches
Winding outside on the wall.

Then my thoughts were carried forward
To a time when I would be
Inmate of a vine-clad cottage
That would all belong to me.

And my garden would be blooming
By my little cottage door,
And the sun peep thru the ivy
To shine on my cottage floor.

And my life would be as happy
And as busy as the bees
That would hum among my flowers
And among my orchard trees.

While I thought thus of the future
With this picture in my mind,
Standing in among the flowers,
Scenting perfume on the wind.

Some sweet voice came from the window
Softly calling to the man,
And he stopped his work to listen,
And the sweet voice came again,

Asking him to leave the flowers,
Saying, 'Come and sit by me;
'Come, the flowers will not wither,
Let us rest, dear, don't you see

'That we're growing old together,
And our work will soon be done?
See the shadows growing longer
At the setting of the sun!'

And the old man straightway heeded,
For he put his spade away.
And the good wife kindly added,
'Let us rest, dear, while we may.'

When the gardener was gone, for
Neither wife nor husband knew
That a boy was in the garden
Where the thickest flowers grew,

I began at once to wonder
For the first time in my life,
Who would bless my little cottage
As my sweetheart, friend, and wife.

And I added to the picture
That my youthful mind had made,
One more inmate to my cottage
Who would love me and my spade.

And I looked among the flowers
And I thought that I could see
Some sweet face among the blossoms
That looked-out and smiled at me.

And her teeth and neck and forehead
Were like newly fallen snow,
And her cheeks were like the roses
That were blooming just below,

And her hair that lay so loosely
On her head was glossy black,
And the locks were neatly gathered
In white ribbons at the back.

Oh the feeling that came o'er me!
'Twas a joy almost divine,
When I saw her brown eyes looking
For a moment into mine.

Then I spoke, but quick as thought
The
Lovely form was out of sight,
For the noise I made awoke me
And my picture vanished quite.

Long I looked among the flowers,
But my looking was in vain,
For the face that smiled so sweetly
Was not there to smile again.

And I signed, and straightway started
From the little cottage place,
For the flowers were not pretty
After seeing such a face.

I was filled with admiration
For that form so richly sweet;
Gladly I'd have plucked the roses
That she crushed beneath her feet.

Many years since then I've wandered
Up and down the ways of life,
And that face has been before me
In the very fiercest strife.

It was stamped upon my young brain
On that early summer day
When I stood among the flowers
In the garden far away.

And 'twill always be before me,
And 'twill teach me how to find,
In a living form, the maiden
That I see now in my mind.

Often have I sat at evening
Looking toward the starry sky;
In my heart a strong desire
That some morning by-and-by,

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. Sept. 24-25

While upon my lonely journey
Through the world of busy men;
In the noisy, smoky city,
Out upon the grassy plain,

On the shores of roaring oceans,
By the sides of singing rills,
Through the green of fertile valleys,
Over rugged, barren hills,

I have wondered if some morning
As I pass along my way,
I might see the face I once saw
On that far-off summer day.

Often have I sat at midnight
Listening to the crickets sing,
While the world seemed to be sleeping

Like a quiet, peaceful thing
But the crickets' song had meaning,
And it made me sad to hear
What each cricket seemed to whisper
To the other crickets near.

Far and wide they sent the message
Whilst the moments swiftly flew
'Twas a tale of human sorrows
That I thought could not be true.

They were telling of the millions
Struggling hard and long for life;
Men and women forced each moment
To surrender in the strife.

There were young and happy mothers,
Each with baby on her knee,
Looking far into the future
To a time when he would be

Such a type of noble manhood
That her heart would leap for joy;
Proud to call herself his mother,
Thanking God for such a boy.

There were men of middle ages,
Each one searching for the light;
Each a man among his fellows,
Bravely standing for the right.

But his work will not be finished,
It will scarcely have begun
When the time arrives for mother
To thank God for such a son.

She is old and gray and feeble,
And she cannot stay to see
That the plans she once made for him
When she held him on her knee,

Shall be more than executed
As the years shall come and go,
By the type of noble manhood
She saw in him long ago.

And when his work is finished
She shall not be there to say,
'I am proud to be your mother;
I rejoice with you today.'

And the greedy men around him,
In their eagerness for fame,
Will not pause to give a tribute
To his honor-worthy name.

And the crickets still continued
TALK OF THE TOWN

Nearly Every One in Albion, Mich.,
Praises Mi-o-na, the Money-Back
Cure for Indigestion.

Albion, Mich.—The people in Albion are elated to an unusual extent because of the many and remarkable cures which have lately been made by Mi-o-na, a dyspepsia cure with a world-wide reputation. Everybody is endorsing Mi-o-na. Here is what some respected residents say:

Mrs. E. C. Cass says: "Mi-o-na cured me of a stomach trouble that had bothered me a long time."

W. H. Mott says: "I had doctored for months without help. I used Mi-o-na and since using it three years ago I have been free from the distress."

Mrs. Emma Overy says: "For months I had dyspepsia, bad stomach distress, pains and nausea. Nothing I used relieved or cured till I used Mi-o-na."

F. W. Jordan, the druggist in Bedford, sells the wonderful dyspepsia cure Mi-o-na for 50 cents a large box and he thinks so well of it that he will give you your money back if it doesn't cure.

HYOMEI

In their melancholy song,
Telling of disgraceful errors
Made by men who should be strong.

Men who reach the seat of honor
Thru a high and noble birth;
Who will ask about their neighbor,
'How much is the fellow worth?'

How much is he worth? Is manhood
Something that is bought and sold?
Do you think that you can reckon
Human worth in terms of gold?

Can you think of fifty dollars'
Worth of honest loyalty?
Would a gold mine buy the laughings
Babe from off its mother's knee?

Would your money keep the youth and
Maid from meeting in the grove?
Can you think of any money's
Worth of honest, faithful love?

And the crickets still kept singing,
And the echoes rolled along;
'Not a joy without a sorrow,'
Was the message in their song.

Could they tell me of the maiden,
Whose bright eyes and smiling face
Looked out from among the flowers
In the little cottage place?

Could they tell if I was searching
Through the world for her in vain,
Looking only for a shadow
That would not appear again?

Or if such a maid was living
In the great world anywhere,
Could they tell me where she dwelled, that

I might go and find her there?
Could they tell me if some other
Youth had come to her to woo?
Did he tell her that he loved her?
Did she learn to love him too?

Did he speak to her of marriage?
Did she drop her eyes and sigh?
Shall I be too late to win her,
If I meet her by-and-by?

Or if she should still be waiting
In a lonely little grove
For a youth to come and woo her,
Such a one as she could love,

Would she look at me so sweetly
With a smile upon her face,
Like she did when first I saw her
In the little cottage place?

Should I be the one she looked for—
Who would take her for his wife?
Could I teach her how to love me?
Would she be my better life?

Would her spirit be as gentle
As her face is fair to see?
Would she be the type of woman
That a good wife ought to be?

But the gray dawn broke upon us
Long before the song was done,
And I started on my journey
At the rising of the sun?

And I hurried on my pathway
Ever looking for the face,
That I saw among the flowers
In the little cottage place.

And I saw as on I journeyed
Through the world of busy men,
Brothers taking leave of brothers,
Maybe not to meet again.

Brothers taking leave of sisters,
Sisters parting each from each,
When hot tears and heaving bosoms
Were the only mode of speech.

Children taking leave of parents
To begin life's work alone;
Parents left without a comfort
When the children all were gone.

Strangers met and spoke together,
And the new acquaintance grew
Till it ripened into friendship
That remained forever true.

And I heard their voices tremble,
And I saw their tearful eyes
When they gathered for the last time
For a thousand last good-bys.

And I still am on my journey
Looking for the smiling face
That I saw among the flowers
In the little cottage place.

And I know I made an error
When I heard the crickets sing;
When I thought the world was sleeping

Like a quiet, peaceful thing.
For that moment there was sadness
In the world of busy men,
Millions perished in the struggle;
Billions felt a touch of pain.

But I do not feel discouraged,
And I mean to journey on,
Ever thankful for the many
Happy hours that I have known.

Trusting that some nearby morning
I may find my peace at last,
And that she will make my future
Far more happy than my past

So that when we stand together
Where I all alone have stood,
I can look into her real face
And see nothing there but good.

THE SEVENTH AMENDMENT

Machine Plan to Deprive the People of the Right to Vote For Election Officers a "Staggering Innovation."

[From the Philadelphia Record.]
Among the proposed amendments to the state constitution which will be submitted to the voters for ratification on Nov. 2 is one (Number Seven) amending Article 8, Section 14, providing for the choice of district election boards by the citizens of the districts, as to empower the general assembly, at its option, to change the method of choice by making the boards appointive instead of elective in the cities of the state. The only limit set upon the power of the general assembly in enacting such a change in the law is the requirement that the laws shall be uniform for cities of the same class. This is a most staggering innovation.

It will not be denied that the voters in the cities of this state have been culpably remiss in the selection of duly qualified and honest men to compose the boards of the ballot. But the effort to vote might as well be taken away as the right to secure the proper casting and counting of the vote. Furthermore, signs are not wanting of a general awakening on the part of the citizens to long-neglected duties and responsibilities, and such a revival of public spirit is bound to result in a marked improvement in the character of election boards chosen under the present system.

Amendment Number Seven should be overwhelmingly defeated. It is a sheer, bald proposition to hereafter put it in the power of the general assembly to provide in advance for debauching all future municipal elections in the cities of the state. It will never work out as the reformers who originally advocated it intended. They should have looked to the future as well as to the present. We may not always have an honest governor to delegate the appointive power to honest subordinates. We are not likely even now to have a legislature that could be trusted to keep faith with the Committee of Seventy in framing new laws under the permissive provision of the proposed amendment. The power of selecting election officers should never be taken from the people.

It is not possible that Amendment Number Seven should receive popular assent once its aim is exposed. The alacrity with which two machine majorities in gang-owned legislatures put themselves behind the proposition is a sufficient indication that it bodes no good to the people. Every voter who shall place an affirmative mark opposite Amendment Number Seven on election day will be helping a corrupt political machine to disfranchise him. To safeguard popular rights the amendment must be beaten.

COLONEL POTTER ON QUAY

Veteran Reformer Pays His Respects to Memory of Arch Corruptionist.

At a meeting of the veteran reformers of Philadelphia the other evening one of the hopes of the Republican machine was badly shattered. Four years ago the Lincoln Party men in that city declared, until within a few days before election, that they had no intention of interfering with political conditions outside of the city. This year the William Penn Party has assumed very much the same attitude and the machine Republicans had begun to express the hope that the old Lincoln Party men would not only support the Democratic state candidates, but that they are indifferent to the success of Mr. J. Clarence Gibbons, the Democratic and Penn Party nominee for District Attorney.

To refute all rumors on that point and for the purpose of setting themselves in a proper light before the public these veteran reformers held a meeting the other night at which Colonel Sheldon Potter and others spoke, and Mr. Blankenburg, who was prevented by sickness from attending, wrote a letter which was read. During his speech Colonel Potter said of the Quay statue:

In a few days there will be placed in a place in the place where Pennsylvania's heroic sons should be honored the statue of a man who was the prince of corruptionists, and whose only fame was his power to enslave men to do as he dictated. This proclaims that we Pennsylvanians have sold our liberty. It can only be done either because public conscience is dead or because we hold too lightly our liberties. The latter seems the truth, especially in Philadelphia, where we willingly support a robber contractors' government and permit them to steal from us the one thing most sacred to an American citizen—his ballot.

A Wonderful Discovery for Pimples.

It is surprising how quickly and easily pimples and black-heads can be cured with the following prescription, which was made known to the public a short time ago by a celebrated specialist on skin diseases, now retired, who used it in a long and successful practice with wonderful results. To use his own words: "There is nothing yet discovered that can compare with it for promptly removing pimples, eczema, black-heads, blotches, red face and nose, and in fact any disease of the skin; it also destroys the germ that causes the disease and makes the cure permanent." Following is the prescription, which can be prepared at any reliable Drug Store at a small cost: Clearol one-half ounce, Ether one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces. Mix, shake well and apply to the parts affected night and morning, letting it remain on the face for ten or fifteen minutes, then it can be wiped off. Do not use any soap, use instead a little oatmeal tied up in a cheese cloth bag.

THINGS ALL RIGHT FOR THE MACHINE

Legislation Session of 1903 an Orgie of Corruption.

SISSON AND STOBBER TOOLS

Republican Nominees Supported All the Iniquitous Legislation Introduced in the Interest of the Party Bosses.

The session of the legislature of 1903 opened auspiciously for the machine managers. The insurgent force which prevented the election of Quay in 1899 and a remnant of which caused some annoyance during the session of 1901 had been entirely obliterated in the election of 1902, when Pennypacker fooled them all; the Democratic minority had been reduced almost to a negligible quantity and the outlook for "good stealing" was exceptionally bright. The machine traders were present in full force, moreover, and the promise was that everything would go their way.

Probably no measure considered during the session attracted as much public notice as the Salus-Grady libel bill, commonly known as the "press muzzle," read in place in the senate by Mr. Grady, of Philadelphia, on April 7. The echo of Quay's voice pleading the statute of limitations in a Philadelphia criminal court had scarcely died out. All the machine leaders ascribed Quay's trouble to the newspapers and they were resentful. But their plans to stifle the freedom of the press met courageous and consistent opposition at every stage, and the bill had to be amended twice, postponed once and recommitted once before it got through the senate finally. On April 9, however, this sinister result was achieved, both Sisson and Stobber voting for it in every form and at every stage. The final vote is recorded on page 1917 of the Journal of the Senate, though falsely indexed, for the purpose of confusing inquirers, no doubt, as on page 1828.

The session of 1903 was conspicuous for its raids on the treasury in the shape of multiplying offices and increasing the salaries of public officials. Among the incursions along those lines were the bill to increase the salaries of judges, in contempt of the constitution, Sisson and Stobber both voting in the affirmative. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1627. The bill to increase the number of clerks and other employees and the salaries in the office of the attorney general, Sisson and Stobber both voting for the measure. Senate Journal, 1903, page 958. The bill to create a bureau of elevator inspectors, which was simply a device to create a number of new and expensive offices to be filled by party pensioners. Sisson and Stobber voted together for this measure. Senate Journal, 1903, page 662.

The bill appropriating $25,000 to erect a monument on the capitol grounds to perpetuate the memory of the late Simon Cameron excited more contempt than indignation, because the public was confident that it would fail. It passed the senate on Jan. 22, however, with the votes of Sisson and Stobber in favor of it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 343.

The act of 1901 having served its purpose of permitting the machine politicians to acquire such electric railway franchises as they desired or could handle, for the time being, a bill was introduced during the session of 1903, modifying that measure. The new bill provided that before a charter for an electric or trolley railroad should issue from the state department the governor, secretary of state and attorney general should certify that it was necessary. That absurd proposition passed the senate finally on April 9, Sisson and Stobber voting for it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1827.

The Pennsylvania railroad had been carrying a white elephant in the number of years which was in its hands, troublesome. When it acquired the control of the canals of the state, conditions were imposed under which it might have been required to maintain these waterways, and it had tried in various ways to relieve itself of this burden and menace.

During the session of 1903 two or three expedients were invoked. One was an act to authorize corporations to sell and transfer franchises and property to other corporations. Sisson and Stobber voted for the bill. Senate Journal, 1903, page 910. It was subsequently vetoed by Governor Pennypacker, who liked to keep fresh in the corporate mind the fact that he had power.

The result was achieved subsequently in another bill, entitled "A further supplement to an act to authorize the formation and regulation of railroads," which passed the senate finally on March 31, Sisson and Stobber voting in the affirmative. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1865.

One of the pet iniquities of the session of 1903 was Senator Grady's refrigerator bill. The purpose of that measure was to enable a syndicate of machine politicians to acquire a monopoly of the refrigerating business in the cities. No man can estimate the evil of such a condition. Butchers, dealers in vegetables and in fact men in every line of business would be at the mercy of such a corporation and pestilence and death would be inevitable. Yet under the spur of the party boss that infamous bill passed the senate finally, Sisson and Stobber voting for it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 651.

Several attempts were made during the session of 1903 to create a monopoly with control of the water power of the state. Such an iniquity would be scarcely less in evil consequences than the Grady enterprise. Two of these were in the form of senate bills and another in the shape of a house bill which came over to the senate for concurrence. Sisson and Stobber supported all these sinister schemes. There were a number of insurance bills introduced during the session in pursuance of the plans of the insurance lobby operating in New York and Pennsylvania, which subsequently led to investigations in both states. Sisson and Stobber voted for all of them.

The judicial salary bill, which increased the expenses of the courts more than half a million dollars a year was enacted during the session of 1903, Sisson and Stobber voting for it, though it clearly violated the constitution of the state, and they were sworn to "support, obey and defend" that instrument. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1627.

Another attempt was made to raid the treasury through the courts by a law retiring judges at a certain age on full pay. This would have cost the people a quarter of a million dollars a year if it had passed. On final passage in the senate Sisson and Stobber voted for it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1075.

There were also three bills creating new judges considered during the session of 1903, and Sisson and Stobber voted for two of them. Senate Journal, 1903, pages 1711 and 1712. The other didn't reach a roll call or, it is safe to say, they would have voted for it.

During the session of 1903 there were introduced into the senate a number of labor bills or measures in the interest of organized labor. The coal regions were especially concerned in legislation of this sort. These bills were referred to the committee on mines and mining, of which Senator Heidelberg, of Lancaster, Senator Stobber's colleague, was chairman. Heidelberg consigned the bills to his "inside pocket" and couldn't be prevailed on to present them for consideration until the session had nearly come to an end.

During the period that the bills were kept in concealment efforts were made to pass a resolution to "discharge the committee from consideration of them," but without avail. Among the senators who gave moral and material support to the practice of Heidelberg were Sisson and Stobber. It was the policy of the Republican legislative machine and that was paramount to justice and duty to them.

There was no trick too trifling for the machine during the session of 1903. Any expedient which worked to the advantage of the gang and made trouble for the opposition was adopted. In Philadelphia and some other cities the machine had been having trouble with men who, resenting frauds at the primary elections, would file objections to nomination papers. In most cases that was all that it amounted to. That is to say, in Philadelphia, for example, in most cases the court being in sympathy with the crooks, would dismiss the petition. Like the late Mr. Tweed, however, these leisured gentlemen don't like to be annoyed, and they conceived the notion that if their obliging friends, the judges, were authorized to put the costs on the petitioner in such case, the annoyance would be minimized, if not discontinued entirely.

Accordingly a bill was introduced into the senate during the session of 1903 putting the costs of all such objections upon the petitioner. The purpose to foster fraud was so apparent in this measure that it is surprising that any one would be willing to introduce it. But such a person was found, and among those who voted for the bill were Sisson and Stobber. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1813.

The bill to increase the salary of the state treasurer, enacted during the session of 1903, was another party necessity. While the building and furnishing of the state capitol was in progress a man of their own kidney was wanted in the office of state treasurer. They are not found in every nook and corner, but William L. Mathues, of Chester, filled the bill to perfection.

But Mathues was a high-priced man and he wouldn't take the office unless the salary was increased from $5000 to $8000 a year. Accordingly the machine managers agreed to his terms, and a bill for the increase was introduced. There were objections, of course, and it was shown that the compensation for other services to that state, equally onerous and exacting, were no more generous. But the looters had to have Mathues, and the rabble were driven to consent. The bill passed the senate finally April 7, Sisson and Stobber voting in the affirmative. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1673.

Citizens of Pennsylvania should be proud to vote for such men as have been nominated by the Democratic party for the several offices to be filled this year. For justice of the supreme court C. La Rue Munson is presented. He is a lawyer of great ability and experience and of the highest character for integrity and learning. The candidate for auditor general, J. Wood Clarke, Esq., is as capable as he is courageous, and the candidate for state treasurer is not only an experienced banker, but a progressive and successful business man. Neither of these gentlemen has been the slave of machine politicians or the servile instrument of partisan knaves. If they are elected the interests of the people will be conserved at every turn.

Feeds for Young Calf

Feed the young calf at least three times a day, and feed smaller amounts at a time. When fed only twice a day the calf becomes so hungry that it drinks the milk too fast and indigestion often results, and indigestion is a source of many troubles. After the calf learns to nibble hay or other solid feeds, the feeding of milk may be reduced to twice a day.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

Weak Eyes

If your eyes are weak and are easily tired when reading and sewing, it probably means that your general health is below par. A nourishing diet and plenty of sleep, combined with exercise in the open air, are important. When you must work rest your eyes occasionally for a few minutes at a time, and always work in a good light—in daylight if possible.

Dentistry as Applied to Trees
State Zoologist Surface found a letter in the mail sent to the Division of Zoology of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, asking how to prevent decay in a tree from making further progress. The writer said: "We have a cherry tree whose trunk has rotted considerably. What can be done to save the tree? Is it a good plan to cut out the dead part and fill up the hole with cement?"

Professor Surface replied: "The proper treatment for the cavity of your cherry tree is to clean this out, removing the decayed wood; then wash or spray the interior with an antiseptic, such as a two per cent. solution of formalin, or a very dilute solution of mercury bichloride, which is corrosive sublimate; then paint it with ordinary paint of any kind, and finally fill the cavity with any kind of cement, or use one part of Portland cement with about four or five parts of sand."

"This is practically nothing else than the principle of modern dentistry applied to the preservation of the tree. The dentist cleans out the cavity of a decaying tooth, applies an antiseptic to prevent further decay, and fills the tooth with some substance that by preservation will prevent the possibility of further decay. We are coming to see that the treatment of all living things for ills and afflictions is based upon the same fundamental biological principle."

Recalls an Old Story.

The president believes that the Payne tariff is the best tariff ever enacted, which recalls the old story of the man who approached Sydney Smith with the remark, "Mr. Robinson, I believe." "Sir," was the reply, "if you believe that you will believe anything."—Providence Journal.

Be sure to pay a state of county tax before the 2d of October if you have not paid such a tax within two years. It is the duty and ought to be the desire of every citizen to vote, and no man can exercise that privilege unless he has complied with the requirements of the law with respect to paying taxes.

Taft a Practical Politician.

President Roosevelt said, "You and I are practical men." But it remained for President Taft to say to the multitude, "My party and I are practical politicians."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

President Taft is so careless about keeping promises that he has become reckless in making them. But after his action on the tariff question it really makes little difference what promises he makes.

FALL FASHIONS FOR OCTOBER 4

North American's Special Edition to be Issued on Monday.

The North American announces that its Fall Fashion number will be issued on Monday, October 4, in conjunction with the regular news edition for that day.

In the esteem of The North American, fashions are legitimate news, and therefore the latest word about fashions is quite as worthy of circulation as the reports of the latest experts of aviation.

The paper maintains a large special staff in Paris, and from these experts comes a striking array of photographs and drawings of the very latest creations of the foremost dictators of Parisian styles. They are put out first in America through The North American, and will be seen in its Fall Fashion number weeks in advance of their appearance in other publications in this country.

Undoubtedly there will be a big demand for this issue of the paper. It will be a regular bargain day, the buyer getting the news as well as all the latest fashions of the day. News-dealers will supply the increased demand if orders are placed in advance.

BOTH BOYS SAVED

Louis Boon, a leading merchant of Norway, Mich., writes: "Three bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar absolutely cured my boy of a severe cough, and a neighbor's boy, who was so ill with a cold that the doctors gave him up, was cured by taking Foley's Honey and Tar." Nothing else is as safe and certain in results. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Why Children "Fidget"

Fidgets provoke wrath from thoughtless grownups. Often one hears an angry fool shouting: "Why can't you sit still?" but the child can't sit still; nature will not let it, but is stimulating it through its nerves to make it grow. The fidget arises from lack of proper play or employment. Supply this or divert the attention to something interesting and the nerve centers will have work to do, the growing need is satisfied and the fidget stopped.

Pride is Necessary

Pride may be allowed to this or that degree, else a man cannot keep up his dignity. In gluttony there must be eating, in drunkenness there must be drinking. It is not the eating, nor is it the drinking that is to be blamed, but the excess. So is pride.—John Selden.

Itch! Itch! Itch! — Scratch! Scratch! Scratch! The more you scratch the worse the itch. Try Doan's Ointment. It cures piles, eczema, any skin itching. All druggists sell it.

Franklin's Advice

Follow Benjamin Franklin's advice of eating a few plain, simple meats, vegetables, fruits, bread and drink, these simple, fresh and pure and coarse. People should follow the argument and instruction he sets forth as absolute and not to be counter-vailed.

Nothing so good when you need a pill as Rings Little Liver Pills—small, sure, easy. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

The Best

An almost forgotten poet, Robert Hinely Messenger, quaintly wishes for old wood to burn, old books to read and old friends to talk with in an ideal old age, and he might also have added, old tunes to be played in the long twilight while he dozed and dreamed in his easy chair.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE WATER QUESTION

In another section of this issue of The Gazette is printed a copy of a petition by the committee appointed at the town meeting called to consider the matter of securing a more abundant water supply to the Town Council, asking for information with regard to the report of the engineer who was employed to look the matter over and make recommendations as to the relative merits of the propositions to repair the old reservoir and the building of an additional one, or catch-basin, below; also concerning the proposed action of the Council, and the use that has been made of the funds collected from water taxes. This is a matter of vital importance for the health of the citizens of the town depends, in large measure, upon the abundance and purity of the supply of water for drinking and domestic purposes, and every citizen of the town should feel a lively interest in the matter.

The committee appointed at the town meeting deserves credit for the efforts put forth and when a plan of action is finally decided upon the hands of the Council should be upheld to a successful completion of the task.

Let us have water and water in abundance. Then will the Board of Trade not be hampered in efforts put forth to secure industries for Old Bedford. The conditions at the reservoir are such as to make this a desirable time to begin.

DISREGARDING THE GAME LAW

That the game law of the state is being disregarded and violated is evident from the number of gun discharges during the early morning along the mountain, and if further proof is necessary it can be found in the game sacks in which dead squirrels are carried home by those who violate the law.

This state of affairs does not exist alone about Bedford, on the other hand reports come from a number of sections of the county that game is being killed out of season.

This state of affairs should not exist and those guilty of violating the statutes of the state should be made to pay the penalty attached to the offence.

The true sportsman will not kill half-grown squirrels nor young pheasants and quail, especially out of season.

It is this lawlessness on the part of some who hunt, together with their disregard of law in throwing down fences and cutting timber, that leads the owners of woodland to prohibit trespassing, which they are justified in doing and about which much is being said by the very persons who cause it to be done. Let there be an end of it!

Let us supply your stationery—good quality, best prices. Gazette Job Rooms.

Market on Saturday

A Saturday morning market at the Smith house on the square. A market to save the worry of baking for Sunday; "the kind of cakes and pies mother used to make," wholesome home-made bread, rolls and biscuits, and maybe some other things you'd like to have. If it rains, the whole market will move from the Smith house to the Presbyterian Chapel. And it's on Saturday morning, say at eleven.

Presbyterian Church

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered Sunday morning, October 3, at 11 o'clock. The service will be conducted by Rev. Edward Franklin Reimer, B. D., of Easton, who will preach both morning and evening. The subject of the Communion sermon will be "Jesus' Monument." This will deal with one of the most striking sayings of the Savior. At 7.30 the topic of the sermon is "God Is Our Home." This is a study in interpretation and shows how fresh meaning may properly be given to one of the very familiar sayings in the Bible. The public is very cordially invited to both these services on Sunday, October 3.

That Powerless Tariff Commission.

Although Taft's new tariff commission will have luxurious quarters in Washington, with a retinue of experts and clerks, with fat salaries and plenty of money for traveling abroad and at home, theirs is not going to be a bed of roses. That enfant terrible of protection, Wilbur F. Wakeman, ex-general appraiser of customs, has already opened war on the commission. In behalf of the American Protective Tariff League he proclaims its distrust and his own of the three commissioners whom President Taft has chosen to collect tariff data for use at some more or less remote period in the dim future.—Philadelphia Record.

Death of Governor Johnson.

In the death of Governor Johnson, of Minnesota, the nation loses more than a favorite son—he was a civic hero. His type of manhood, his standard of citizenship, his pluck, and his character combined to make of him not only one of the foremost figures in the public eye, but they have combined in making of his life that kind which lives for good in the hearts of the people, the kind which makes a monument of example rather than that of eulogy chiseled upon gravestones. And as was his public career, clean and courageous, so was his private life, noble and kind and Christian.—Williamsport Sun.

Wealth Wins in Both Instances.

In saying that the rich litigant has the best of it at law, the president might add that the rich lobby had the best of it in making the tariff law for which he apologized when he signed it.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

One Matter Elucidated.

President Taft's praise of Senator Aldrich shows how little a man who is drawing a salary of $75,000 a year knows of the tribulations of the ultimate consumer.—Dallas News.

Read the legislative records of A. E. Sisson and J. A. Stober which will be found in another column of this paper. These records are taken from the Journal of the Senate, the official chronicle of that body and are official and accurate. It will be seen that they voted for every iniquitous measure considered by the Senate during the sessions of 1901 and 1903.

The political conditions this year are precisely like those of 1905 when William H. Berry was elected state treasurer by nearly 100,000 majority. The same result can be brought about this year if the Democrats of Pennsylvania are equally vigilant and energetic.

What's in McClure's

"The Most Powerful Man in America," by Burton J. Hendrick, a dispassionate review of E. H. Harriman's career as a railroad magnate; "The Ominous Hush in Europe," a paper by H. R. Chamberlain on the possibilities of war between Germany and Great Britain; "Eusapia Paladino, the Despair of Science," by Hereward Carrington, who personally investigated the famous Naples medium who has puzzled Lombroso, Plammation and other eminent scientists; and "The Vampire of the South," the story of the ravages of the hookworm disease in the South, by Maron Hamilton Carter, form the leading features of McClure's Magazine for October. In addition to these articles Lieutenant Shackleton tells of his dash for the South Pole, and there are a number of good short stories: "On Kindilini" by John Fleming; "The Problem" by Oscar Graeve; "The Man Who Went Back" by W. ## Apple Leaf Rust

A box, containing fruit and leaves taken from an apple tree, of the Summer Rambo variety, was sent from Perry County to Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, for an explanation as to the cause of the red rust with which both fruit and leaves were covered.

Professor Surface wrote in reply: "I have received and examined the apple leaves which you sent to us, and find these leaves infected with the Apple Leaf Rust. This disease, in order to come to perfection, must live part of the year on one kind of plant and part of the time on another. The red cedar, which is one species of juniper, is known as the alternating host. Thus, if the red cedar trees be cut down in your neighborhood, it will help to suppress this pest. It sounds at first like nonsense, to say that the destruction of red cedar trees will help to prevent apple pests; but this particular fungus disease, known as Rust or 'Red Rust of the Apple,' cannot exist throughout the year without having a season in which it lives on the red cedar in the form of a little brown or dark ball often seen thereon, and commonly called 'cedar apples.' During a favorable time in summer, little long filaments come out of these cedar balls, or apples, and produce a dust, which consists really of great numbers of spores or microscopical seeds. These are carried by the wind to the leaves and fruit of the apple trees, where they penetrate the tissue and cause the disease you have seen. Spraying apple trees with Bordeaux mixture would also be found efficient in preventing this disease and preserving the health of leaf and fruit."

HECKERMAN LETTERS

In Attendance at the Kentucky State Fair.

Louisville, Ky.
This is fair week here. The crowds are immense; hotels are turning away hundreds that cannot be accommodated. Here is where the state fair is held, and each year since the Kentucky state fair was organized I am told it has been much better than the year before. This year far eclipses all former years. Everything is on a much grander and more costly scale. The entry list in every department has far exceeded all former years and the association has erected large tents here, there and everywhere, wherever there was any space, in which to show exhibits.

Here they have a hundred thousand dollar live stock pavilion. They also have their own light plant at a big cost and the grounds are brilliantly illuminated at night and the fair is kept open night as well as day. This year the night horse show feature is to be one of the chief attractions; sorry I can't stay to see it. Five thousand dollars will be given the winners in this particular department, besides numerous cups and trophies which will be presented by firms and individuals. I doubt if there is an article of any importance raised in old Kentucky that is not on exhibit this year.

The opening exercises took place last Monday at 1 p. m. and were presided over by the present Mayor of Louisville. The gates were open all the day and the evening for all school children free. The swarm of children that passed through the gates was large. Many conventions were held here during the week. I may only mention one—Good Roads. Governor Wilson is interested in the good roads proposition and issued a proclamation to the people of the state to attend the good roads convention, which brought delegates from all over the state. Much good will no doubt come of the meeting and they need it in most parts of the state.

The amusement features of the fair were many and varied. The attractions on the Plaza (a thing Bedford ought to have) were furnished by the Spillman Amusement Company. They had high-class shows going from early morn until late at night, and there was no better place for one to spend their hard earned spuds than right in the Plaza. The horse with human intelligence was there. This horse could pick out of the crowd a red haired lady and do many other wonderful things. The wild west show with its twenty cowboys and cowgirls with their herd of trained buffaloes; Capt. DeBarcey, the smallest man living; Tiny Mite, smallest horse in the world, along with Victoria, the smiling fat girl of the world, who tips the beam at 400, go to make things lively along the Plaza. They have crowds all the time at these shows. Then there were fire works each evening which were enjoyed by all.

Among the set pieces which required the aid of scores of well trained men to operate, "The Still Alarm," "The Last Rose of Summer," "The Sultan's Fan," and numerous others that "ad don't remember, were the best ever. Last year was the banner year for the Kentucky state fair up to that time, but this year eclipsed all anticipations in every way. Over seventy-five thousand paid admissions on Wednesday were reported and I reckon that Thursday's number beat Wednesday right much. Oh! how I would love to see half such a fair at the dear old town.

Who found the North Pole and what good will the finding do you and me, is the question that is asked all around.

This, the largest city of the state, is a hustling city. My, the amount of business that is done here! The streets are all well paved, the stores are equal to any in the east; in fact those living here all seemed to be imbued with that "Git up and git, Charlie" that is in the makeup of all the northern men who succeed. The colored population is large and some quite wealthy colored merchants and planters are among them. My home when here is at the Willard Hotel. It is conducted on the American plan and is as good as they get them anywhere for the price. I am going to visit Mammoth Cave the coming week and will likely write you from there next. Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

Batesville, Ark., Sept. 26.

This beautiful town in the State of Arkansas (as they want you to call it) is 35 miles from New Port and on the very bank of the White River, a stream that has more fish in it to the square yard than any other stream south; bass, perch and white fish mixed up in the puddle with cat fish constitute the family. Batesville is a dry town and has been for some years. Last week they dedicated a beautiful building as a Masonic home for the widows of deceased Masons. The building is furnished very nicely.

WALK-OVER SHOES

Care Much About
How Your Shoes Look?

Few Shoes keep their style after they have been worn a short time.

This is generally due either to poor "lasting" or else to the use of improper material for stiffening the toe and the back of the shoe around the heel.

"Lasted" by the best paid shoe workers in the world and made with box toes and counters of real leather, WALK-OVER shoes never fall in at the toe or bulge out at the heel. You can be sure of it.

Prices $3.50 $4.00 $5.00

Metropolitan Clothing and Shoe House,
BEDFORD, PA.

Here we have a calf with only two legs. 'Tis of the Hersford breed, has a pretty white face, is six months old. There is absolutely no trace of its front legs, it has learned to walk fairly well on its hind legs and it seems to enjoy the notoriety of tent life. At the age of four months it was sold for $800, but more recently it was sold for $1,400. It is much more of a curiosity than the five-legged sheep that was at Osterburg.

Hot down here? Well I reckon it has been for some time. Eggs are fried in a few seconds by placing them on a pie plate and setting it in the sun, and worse still, it was so hot on Wednesday that the corn out in the field all popped and was blown about. A drove of cattle in a nearby field saw the white corn in the wind and mistook it for snow and liked to freeze to death. Selah.

This is the harvest season and the beautiful cotton is coming into all the towns in great loads. The roads for a long distance are all lined with wagons loaded with the fleecy article, which today commands a good price. Today the "middling" cotton is worth thirteen and a quarter cents per pound, while choice long staple is worth thirty-five cents per pound, but in this immediate section the long staple doesn't do near so well. The fields, as one rides along, look beautiful for the ground looks as if it were covered with millions of snow balls. One can see three different colored blossoms—white, pink and brown—as well as the green bowl and the ripe cotton on the one stalk, and we see hundreds of boys and girls as well as men and women in the fields picking. Some grown persons pad their knees and walk on them to pick, because much of the cotton is only twelve to eighteen inches high. It is a back-breaking job at best. They have a long sack strapped over their shoulders, much like a bolster case such as your mother used on their beds. This they let drag behind them. 'Tis said that a boy or girl of ten will pick more cotton than a grown person. The planters pay sixty cents per cwt. for picking. The crop some places is short and in other places a good, fair crop. Cotton here is in market like wheat at home; always sells for cash or its equivalent.

The corn crop is short and what corn did grow still stands in the field. By and by the ears will be pulled off and hauled some place to husk, then the cattle are turned in and left to eat the dead fodder. One doesn't sometimes see a shock of fodder as we have them at home in a whole week's travel. The retail stores are all doing a thriving business now. Those employed in the fields get cash every day or every week as they bargain and they spend their money freely. A good picker can make $2 to $2.50 per day, while a slow coach can't make enough to keep soul and body together.

While all this great southern country is dry, yet one sees drunken men daily and reads almost as often of the finding of wild cat stills in full operation in the swamps and ravines where it is hard to get to; hard to get the material to the still and as hard to get the liquor out, but every now and then one is found and destroyed or captured wholesale and moved. Not long since some revenue officers found one of these stills and moved the whole apparatus here to the court house. Last night the still was stolen and moved again; no tracks or any evidence, however, has been found yet to indicate which way it went. A queer thing to steal. I hear Mrs. Shuck say, 'twould have been far better had they destroyed it. This is a great country for malaria.

Here at the hotel we had yesterday several persons who came to town to attend court lying on sofas, each having a chill. Dady very cheerfully wrote the prescription for each one that has cured him several times. Oh, how mean one feels just before the fever has set in. The formula I will give you as it may do some reader and sufferer good. Take thirty grains of quinine, thirty grains of blue mass, twelve drops oil of black pepper and have it made into twelve pills; then take one of these pills about two hours before the time for the expected chill. This is a sure cure.

I have been to Studyard, the center of the rice growing section of Arkansas. They are now cutting it. It grows like wheat; the straw is much coarser, and it takes more power, usually four mules or horses to each reaper. I saw some straw cut, some threshed and some that was quite green and would not be fit to cut for ten days. The yield this year is very good, from ninety to a hundred bushels to the acre, and it is worth today a dollar and sixty cents a bushel. Of course there is considerable expense attached to the raising of rice as it must be flooded and that means the pumping of water all the time. The wells are all driven and are anywhere from forty to one hundred feet deep. Some of these planters put out a hundred acres in one field. This must have a dam all around it and here and there a ditch through it. The water is pumped on and it often takes several days before it will spread and stand several inches deep on the whole field, for a hundred-acre field is no slouch of a field in size.

One sees in this land hundreds of stacks of hay; this now awaits the baling machine, and almost every farmer has one. Some are baling now, while others are paying all attention to their rice. The cotton is coming in fast. All provisions and feed stuffs are so very high that the coons say there is no money left for them after they pay the merchant. I guess it is so for fat meat down here is worth fifteen to seventeen cents per pound; flour, six-fifty per barrel, and all other things in proportion.

I recently, at Helena, Ark., met a Mr. Rider from Harrisburg. He is the buyer for a large wholesale grocery and is a very particular friend of Sam Sansom, knows George Harry and a host of Bedford people. He has been to Bedford Springs and is acquainted with a number of Bedford people. My, how good it made Dad feel to grasp the hand of some one from God's country!

One can scarcely get through the crowded streets here on a Saturday—the colored folks all turn out in full numbers and if you fashionable dress-makers and milliners could see the various styles, cuts and makes of the headgear and the dresses they would be benefited at least to the extent of a smile. Dad hopes that the weather was good and that you had a good fair, such as you deserve to have when an effort is put forth.

During the game on Saturday an event occurred that should cause a law-abiding, liberty-loving citizen in this community to bow his head in shame. A disgraceful row took place, in which persons who should have better knowledge were engaged and which resulted in bloodshed. Drs. American and Walter Enfield and Dr. A. C. Wolf, all of Bedford, have already been called to see Dr. C. O. Dibert, the victim of the gang. What the outcome will be is yet in the future. It is the undeniable duty of every American citizen to stand up for the laws of our land, and when anyone refuses or neglects to do so when our honor is in peril is to become an aider and abettor of anarchy.

Making Money On the Farm

XIV.—Poultry—The Question of Breed

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture"
Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

THERE are breeds, varieties and strains of poultry almost without end. To the beginner in poultry culture the question of which one to select is a puzzling one, and the older poultrymen would wonder if they would not do better to change breeds. The purpose for which chickens are kept will determine which class of fowls is best. As to the varieties within that class, it is largely a matter of individual preference. A brief description of some of the leading varieties may be of help in making a selection.

The General Purpose Breeds.
Chickens may be grouped into four general classes: (1) General purpose breeds; (2) meat breeds; (3) laying breeds; (4) ornamental breeds. The aim of the breeder of general purpose fowls is to combine laying and meat producing ability to the greatest extent possible. The general purpose birds will not average as prolific layers as some of the more strictly egg fowls. For producing meat, however, they are fully as efficient as the strictly meat breeds. For the general farmer who is keeping poultry as a side issue the returns from the general purpose breeds will usually be greater than from any of the more specialized breeds.

The most popular and most widely distributed of the general purpose breeds is the Plymouth Rock. It is a medium sized breed, deep-breasted and well proportioned. Plymouth Rocks are very good layers, especially the first year. After the hens are a year old they tend to become fat and sluggish and lay fewer eggs. The chicks are of excellent quality. The chickens make good broilers at from three to four weeks of age or can be profitably fed for later markets. They are early maturing and as rapid growers excel all other breeds. Chicken feeders who crate-fatten extensively put the Plymouth Rock in first place for this purpose.

There are three varieties of Plymouth Rocks—Barred, White and Buff. The great trouble with the Barred Plymouth Rock is the difficulty in keeping the color markings up to standard. They tend to become unevenly barred, the bars become too wide or too narrow or the general color too dark or too light. From a utility standpoint this factor is of little importance, but where birds or eggs are sold for breeding purposes it is important that the color markings be up to standard. The Buff Rocks have a tendency to vary somewhat from the desired shade and to produce black feathers in wings or tail. They average a little smaller than the Barred or White varieties. The White Rocks breed true to color the easiest. The hens of this variety show even more of a tendency to become overfat than do those of the Barred variety.

Plymouth Rock eggs are brown, which is something of an objection in some markets and an advantage with others. The standard weight for the breed is nine and a half pounds for cocks and seven and a half for hens. Plymouth Rocks are criticized somewhat for lack of hardiness as compared with the other general purpose breeds, and there is doubtless some ground for this criticism. They may be greatly improved in this point by the use of birds of exceptionally strong vitality in the breeding pen.

Next to the Plymouth Rocks in popularity as a general purpose breed are the Wyandottes. They average about a pound lighter than the Plymouth Rocks. The chickens are nearly as rapid growers and produce meat of as good or even better quality.

The Wyandottes are generally considered to stand heavy feeding for rapid growth a little better than most of the other breeds. The hens are active and do not become overfat as easily as Plymouth Rocks.

There are several varieties of Wyandottes, all of the same type and having the same general characteristics. The only distinguishing point is the color. With this breed, as with the Plymouth Rocks, the mixed colors are difficult to breed true to standard. For the man who does not wish to devote a

When You Take Cold

One way is to pay no attention to it; at least not until it develops into pneumonia, or bronchitis, or pleurisy. Another way is to ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. If he says, "The best thing for colds," then take it. Do as he says, anyway.

When the bowels are constipated, poisonous substances are absorbed into the blood instead of being daily removed from the body as nature intended. Knowing this danger, doctors always inquire about the condition of the bowels. Ayer's Pills.

great deal of time to breeding for fancy points a solid color is preferable. One of the newest of the general purpose breeds is the Rhode Island Red. These fowls are very hardy and for that reason well adapted to farm conditions. They rank up well with the Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes in laying ability and as meat producers. They are about the same size as the Wyandottes, the standard weight being eight and one-half pounds for the cock and six and one-half pounds for the hen. The color is a brilliant red, with portions of the tail and wings shading off to black. The exact shade of color varies considerably.

There are a number of other general purpose breeds, such as the Dominiques, Buckeyes and Javans. The latter are about the same size as the Plymouth Rocks, though of a little different shape. They lay well, are fairly good for meat and are good sitters. There are two varieties, black and mottled. The objection applies to this breed that is made to all birds with black plumage—that the black pinfeathers detract considerably from the appearance of the dressed fowl. Such birds are seriously discriminated against in the markets. The foregoing breeds have been developed in this country and are known as American breeds. There is also an English breed, the Orpingtons, that gives very good satisfaction as a general purpose fowl.

The Meat Breeds.

The meat breeds, most of which are Asiatics, are the oldest breeds in this country. The Brahmas, one of the most common of these, are large, the male weighing eleven to twelve pounds and the hen eight and a half to nine and a half. This large size is one of the chief points in favor of the Brahmas. They are slow maturing, and it takes considerable feeding to get their large frames thickly enough covered with meat to be in good market condition. Like all feathered legged breeds, the Brahma is clumsy and for this reason does not make a first class mother. The pullets are too slow in maturing to lay many eggs the first winter. Even when matured they are not heavy layers, though they do most of their laying in the winter, when eggs are high. This is largely because their large size and heavy feathering make them less susceptible to cold. As meat producers the Brahmas are about equal to the general purpose breeds though for high class purposes they are perhaps a little superior. There are two varieties of Brahmas, light and dark. The light Brahmas are the more popular. The black variety is more difficult to breed for color, and much attention to fancy points has caused utility to be largely lost sight of.

Cochins are the second of the meat breeds in size, the males weighing eleven pounds and the hens eight and a half. They are of the same massive, full feathered type as the Brahmas, averaging a trifle shorter legged and wider across the back. Like the Brahmas, they are hardy. They are not as good layers, however, and are just as slow in maturing. There are four varieties, of which the blue is the most common.

Both these breeds have served a good purpose in grading up the native strains of the country and providing foundation stock for the American breeds. At present, however, they have few points of superiority over the American breeds as meat producers and are inferior to them in laying ability. As show fowls they are prized because of their size and beauty.

The smallest and quickest maturing of the Asiatic breeds is the Langshans. They are objectionable because of their black color, white skin and feathered legs and do not excel the American breeds in any practical qualities. An English breed, the Dorkings, are good meat producers, but poor layers. For the man who is in the poultry business from a utility standpoint one of the general purpose or laying breeds will be more satisfactory than any of the meat breeds.

The Laying Breeds.

The laying breeds originally came from the region around the Mediterranean sea, and hence are often referred to as the Mediterranean breeds. The most popular of these is the Leghorn. Leghorns are small birds, not more than half the size of the Asiatics. They are very active and good foragers. They outrank any of the other breeds in laying qualities, laying both summer and winter if properly cared for. They are not adapted to the poultryman who pays no attention to his chickens, as they will not lay unless they are given good care. They lay white eggs weighing ten to the pound. The eggs of the American breeds weigh eight to the pound.

The small size of the Leghorn hens makes them cheaply kept. They are early maturing, often beginning to lay when they are four and a half months old. Their flesh is of good quality, but their size is against them from a market standpoint. The only way the cockerels can be disposed of at a profit is to sell them as broilers at two pounds weight or smaller. Of the several varieties of Leghorn the white and brown are the most popular from a utility standpoint.

Salt for Children.

Did you ever eat a raw apple sprinkled with salt? It is delicious as well as beneficial. Is healthful for children whose food should be well salted. The salt is beneficial to digestion and also creates thirst, compelling frequent drinks of water, of which most people take too little. All food made of flour should be well cooked, especially when fed to children. Doughnuts, for instance, are not fit for children, as they are cooked not longer than six minutes. Pepper and spices should not be put in food which children are to eat.

C. R. Kluger, the Jeweler, 1060 Virginia Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I was so weak from kidney trouble that I could hardly walk a hundred feet. Four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cleared my complexion, cured my backache, and the irregularities disappeared, and I can now attend to business every day and recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to all sufferers, as it cured me after the doctors and other remedies had failed." ## That Lame Back Means Kidney Disease

And to Relieve the Lame and Aching Back, You Must First Relieve the Kidneys

There is no question about that at all—the lame and aching back is caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder. It is only common sense, any way—that you must cure a condition by removing the cause of the condition. And lame and aching back are not by any means the only symptoms of derangement of the kidneys and bladder. There are a multitude of well-known and unmistakable indications of a more or less dangerous condition. Some of these are, for instance: Extreme and unnatural lassitude and weariness, nervous irritability, heart irregularity, "nerves on edge," sleeplessness and inability to secure rest, scalding sensation and sediment in the urine, inflammation of the bladder and passages, etc.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are an exceptionally meritorious remedy for any and all affections or diseased conditions of these organs. These Pills operate directly and promptly—and their beneficial results are at once felt.

They regulate, purify, and effectually heal and restore the kidneys, bladder and liver to perfect health and condition—even in some of the most advanced cases.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail postpaid.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson I.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 3, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxi, 27-39. Memory Verse, 39—Golden Text, II Tim. ii, 3—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our last lesson in the Acts left Paul and his companions at Jerusalem, whither they had just returned from Paul's third missionary journey, and there we resume the story and imagine ourselves present at the service, when, in the presence of James and the elders, Paul declared particularly what things God had wrought among the gentiles by His ministry, and with them we would glorify the Lord (verses 19, 20). Right here comes in our perplexity concerning the advice from the church to Paul that for peace sake he should conform to certain things which were not essential, but which were made much of by the Jews at Jerusalem who believed, but yet continued zealous of the law. That Paul should consent to this suggestion seems somewhat like doing what he condemned Peter for doing in Gal. ii, 11-14. There is always trouble when we depart from the simplicity that is in Christ (II Cor. xi, 3) and seek to keep peace with legal Christians by conforming to their ways instead of standing fast in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free (Gal. v, 1). Well, the plan did not work, for the Jews which were of Asia succeeded in exciting the city against Paul, and he would have been killed had not the chief captain, with centurions and soldiers rescued him from the mob who were beating him to death.

In Paul's defense, as recorded in the next chapter, he acknowledges that the Lord had said to him some time after his conversion, "Make haste and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem, for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me; depart, for I will send thee far hence unto the gentiles" (xxii, 18, 21). Thus, with chapter xxi, 4, and the events which followed Paul's return to Jerusalem at this time, causes me to think that perhaps there was something of Paul in all this and that his years of imprisonment might have been avoided. No one is qualified to throw any stones at him, for who is there that has not been at some time or other very set in his own way because he thought it was the Lord's way, notwithstanding the opinion and the advice of his most intimate fellow believers? Then see how the Lord overruled it all to give us His most helpful epistles from prison, in some of which we can almost hear the clanking of his chains, as some one has said. See Eph. iv, 1; Col. iv, 18.

But, to return to our story and to pursue it, Paul must have been strongly reminded of his own zeal against "the way" in past years as he heard the mob cry, "Away with him!" and a little later, "Away with such a fellow from the earth, for it is not fit that he should live" (xxi, 36; xxii, 22). The people were so violent that not only had the soldiers to rescue him from them, but they actually had to carry him. Asking permission to speak as he was about to be led into the castle, the chief captain was surprised that his prisoner could speak Greek, and then Paul had a new occasion to understand what it meant to be falsely accused and numbered with transgressors, for the captain asked him if he was not an Egyptian who had made an uproar and had led 4,000 murderers into the wilderness (verse 38). Paul acknowledged himself a blasphemer and a persecutor (I Tim. i, 13), but to be reckoned a captain of 4,000 murderers was a pretty heavy accusation. As followers of Christ we must be content for His sake to have laid to our charge things we know not (Ps. xxxiv, 11). Paul's testimony for himself was that he was a Jew of Tarsus, a citizen of no mean city. In xxii, 25, and back in xvi, 37, he pleads that he is a Roman citizen, a citizenship not purchased with money, but his by birth. Because of a great price, even the precious blood of Christ, paid for our redemption, all who receive Him are thus born from above and become citizens of that holy city the new Jerusalem (John i, 12, 13; Phil. iii, 20). Being citizens of such a city, how glad we should be to bear anything for His sake who at such infinite cost has made us such, and how eager we should be to have others enrolled as such citizens, for any one from any part of the wide world may have the privilege.

Paul addressed the multitude in Hebrew, and when they heard him speak in that language they kept the more silence. He rehearsed the story of his birth and education and his zeal toward God such as they were that day manifesting. Then he told how Jesus of Nazareth, risen from the dead and ascended to heaven, had appeared to him on the way to Damascus and convinced him that He was Israel's Messiah and the Saviour of all men and that he was to bear the good news to all men of forgiveness of sins through His name. When they heard of his being sent to the gentiles they as Jews had no use for such a man, cast off their clothes, threw dust into the air and made such an uproar that the chief captain was only prevented from scourging him that he might find out what he had been talking about (for he had been speaking in Hebrew) by Paul's question, "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman and uncondemned?" (xxii, 2)

How to Serve Foods Shot from Guns

Serve them with cream, like other cereals. Or serve them with fruit.

Serve them, like crackers, in a bowl of milk. Or serve them as they are in the package.

However you serve them, you'll find them the most enticing foods that you know.

Think of whole wheat or rice kernels puffed to eight times natural size. Made four times as porous as bread.

Unbroken kernels, crisp and nut-like, ready to melt in the mouth.

Digestible kernels, with every starch granule literally blasted to pieces.

Do you wonder that such foods have jumped into such popularity?

Can you wonder that seventeen million dishes were consumed by people last month?

See if your folks like them.

Puffed Wheat—10c Puffed Rice—15c

These are the foods invented by Prof. Anderson, and this is his curious process:

The whole wheat or rice kernels are put into sealed guns. Then the guns are revolved for sixty minutes in a heat of 550 degrees.

That fierce heat turns the moisture in the grain to steam, and the pressure becomes tremendous.

Then the guns are unsealed, and the steam explodes. Instantly every starch granule is blasted into a myriad particles.

The kernels of grain are expanded eight times. Yet the coats are unbroken, the shapes are unaltered. We have simply the magnified grain.

One package will tell you why people delight in them. Order it now.

Made only by The Quaker Oats Company
